

Norfolk Christian School

School Profile

Overview

Norfolk Christian School is located on the historic east coast of the United States and offers students a rigorous, challenging college-preparatory curriculum, including up to nine AP courses. The strong relationship between the faculty and students at Norfolk Christian School accelerates learning and more fully develops the individual student. The school has a very strong five year record of high AP scores in the areas of math and science, and boasts a Cornell University graduate as a member of their science department. The school integrates technology into learning by distributing Chromebooks to each student for use in and out of the classroom and offers many outlets for students to develop their interests and passions through athletic, academic, and fine arts co-curricular offerings. Two recent graduates currently attend Yale and Cornell.
